Sakhir (Kingdom of Bahrain), April 2nd, 2025 – Bell Racing Helmets, a brand of Racing Force Group, is pleased to announce the new partnership with the AIX Racing team competing in the FIA Formula 2 and FIA Formula 3 championships. Bell Racing provides helmets for the pit crew members with a customized painting, matching the squad's visual identity.

AIX Racing was created in 2024 to compete in the two main support series of the FIA Formula 1 World Championship, quickly achieving notable results. Founded under the ambitious vision of AIX Investment Group, the German-based operation is strongly committed to leave a tangible mark in the motorsport landscape.

The 2025 season got off to the best possible start for the UAE-licensed stable, with Joshua Durksen's dominant victory in the Melbourne Sprint Race that launched the Paraguayan driver to the top of the overall F2 standings. Durksen, as well as Javier Sagrera and Nicola Marinangeli lined up in Formula 3, wears the Bell Racing helmets.

The next round of FIA Formula 2 and FIA Formula 3, to be held in Sakhr, Bahrain, on April 11-13, is of particular significance for this fresh collaboration, as all Bell Racing helmets are designed, developed and manufactured in the facility adjacent to the Bahrain International Circuit.

Aref Yazbek, Chief Business Officer di Racing Force Group, commented: "Safety is always a guiding value of Bell Racing business in motorsport, not only when it comes to drivers. We are delighted we joined forces with AIX Racing to support their involvement in Formula 2 and Formula 3, equipping the pit crews during their key activities with our state-of-the-art head protection products".
