Racing Force Group announces first major Law Enforcement contract of its brand HPS

The Belgian brand of Racing Force Group won the tender to supply Riot Helmets to Dutch Department of Justice

Tubize (Belgium), May 29th, 2025 – Racing Force Group announces that High Protection Systems (HPS), its newest brand, dedicated to adapting and advancing cutting-edge racing safety technologies for Law Enforcement and Defence head protection equipment, has secured its first major multi-year contract. HPS and Racing Force International, in partnership with Condor Arnhem B.V., will supply Riot Helmets to the Department of Justice in the Netherlands.

Following the success of the Next Generation Fixed Wing Aircraft Helmet project for the US Air Force in collaboration with Lift Airborne Technologies LLC, this marks HPS and Racing Force Group's first significant entry into the law enforcement sector.

Paolo Delprato, CEO of Racing Force Group and Chairman of HPS, commented: "We finalized another deal that is part of our diversification projects. This is our first one in the field of law enforcement, which we are now fully involved in. This news clearly confirms the broad interest our high-end motorsport-derived technologies are also gaining for any kind of defense application. We are at the beginning of the strong growth we expect from our diversification projects in the coming years."

A representative of Condor Arnhem said: "We are convinced that with High Protection Systems we have gained an important partner to continue to offer high-quality head protection to Dutch law enforcement and defence agencies."
