

PRESS RELEASE

Racing Force Group's new headquarters in Ronco Scrivia fully operational after expansion project

80 distributors from around the world discovering the new 12,000-square-metre facility

Ronco Scrivia (Genova, Italy), October 28th, 2025 - Racing Force Group, the world's leader in motorsport safety equipment, announces that its new headquarters in Ronco Scrivia, located near the city of Genova, is now fully operational. With the main phase of the expansion works completed, the Group now benefits from a cutting-edge facility that has grown from 8,000 to 12,000 square metres, supporting the production and commercial growth of its motorsport brands - OMP, Bell Racing, Zeronoise, and Racing Spirit - as well as new diversification projects.

Following the launch of operations, the complex is currently hosting the Racing Force Group Masterclass 2025, an event welcoming 80 distributors from 36 countries for an exclusive preview of the 2026 product lines from OMP, Bell Racing, Zeronoise, and Racing Spirit, placing the location at the center of attention for industry professionals.

The new headquarters stands as a clear testament to the Group's vision and growth trajectory, featuring advanced infrastructure and state-of-the-art solutions. Research and development activities now benefit from significantly expanded spaces, designed to enhance functionality and efficiency, with new machinery dedicated to component testing and verification. The enlarged warehouse also represents a major improvement, with storage capacity doubled to serve distributors, partners, and customers in over 80 countries, in coordination with the Group's other facilities in Bahrain and the United States.

At the entrance, a visually striking showroom offers a comprehensive overview of all product lines from OMP, Bell Racing, Zeronoise, and Racing Spirit, delivering a highly engaging experience for clients and visitors. The upper floor houses an exclusive collection of historical memorabilia, celebrating the evolution, innovation, and achievements of the Group's brands, starting from the founding of OMP in 1973 and Bell in 1954. The exhibition path allows visitors to admire up close the equipment that has contributed to countless victories and titles in Formula 1, the World Rally Championship, and all major motorsport disciplines.

Sustainability has been a cornerstone of the project, with the facility already meeting its goals for energy efficiency and resource optimization during the construction phase.

Paolo Delprato, Chairman and CEO of Racing Force Group, stated: "The evolution of our Ronco Scrivia headquarters is a symbol of the dynamism that defines us. The complex is not only an advanced operational center but also a place that celebrates the identity of our brands, reinforcing Racing Force's role as a global motorsport benchmark - and one that is also ready to take on new high-technology sectors. The project was conceived to be fully aligned with our goals and growth strategy, while keeping sustainability at its core. It has been a process started two years ago, carried out without affecting productivity or day-to-day operations."
